Introduction

Introduction

We hope this booklet answers some of the questions you may have about your rent for your home, including what you must do if you find it difficult to pay your rent and the help and advice available.

Social and affordable rented properties

Councils can charge either social rent or affordable rent. Social rent is set by a government formula, affordable rent is up to 80% of market rent, more common in new build properties and acquisitions (properties that come on to the market that the council buy). If your rent is an affordable rent, you will be paying more for your property than a neighbour who has an identical property let at a social rent.

Annual rent review

Rent is reviewed each year following guidelines set by government. You will be given four weeks notice, in writing, of any changes to your rent.

Other times your rent may change:

In some circumstances, in addition to the yearly rent review, rent can increase or decrease, but you will be given four weeks' notice of any change. Here are a couple of examples when rent may change.

- The property is redesignated with a different number of bedrooms.
- Your 5-year fixed term tenancy has ended, and you have been issued with a new 5-year fixed term tenancy.

Service charges

Some properties have a service charge. This is calculated based on actual costs of services being delivered and shared between all homes in a block of flats and/or shared areas. You will be told about any changes in your service charges before you have to pay the new amount. Service charges are added to the rent on your rent account. You will find a breakdown of your service charge on your tenancy agreement.

Service charges and benefits

If you claim benefits to help with your housing costs, please be aware that not all service charges will be eligible for payment by Universal Credit and housing benefit. Those that are not covered are service charges that cover your own personal use such as heating, electric and water to your individual property and you will need to pay this yourself.

Who is responsible for making sure the rent is paid?

As a sole tenant you are responsible for making sure the rent is paid. If you are a joint tenant (where more than one person is named on the tenancy agreement), you are jointly and severally responsible for paying the rent, this means the council can ask each joint tenant to pay all the rent.

When do you have to pay your rent?

Rent is due, in advance, every Monday. You can arrange fortnightly, four weekly or monthly payments, but please talk about this with your Tenancy Sustainment Officer. If you pay by Direct Debit this is not collected in advance.

Rent free weeks! There are four rent free weeks each year, this means we charge your rent for 48 weeks per year, unless there are 53 Mondays in the financial year, in which case we charge rent for 49 weeks. However, you must pay your rent on the rent-free weeks if you are behind with your rent payments (in arrears).

Important information for Universal Credit about the 53-week rent year that occurs every five or six years. The Department for Work and Pensions (DWP) only pay up to 52 weeks of rent per year and will not pay additional Universal Credit to cover the extra week. If you are claiming Universal Credit you will need to pay this extra week and we ask that you pay a little extra each month to your rent account when there is a 53-week financial year to cover the extra week.

How to check your outstanding rent balance and payments

You must regularly check your rent account to make sure you are not behind with your rent. Even if your rent is paid direct to the council by Universal Credit or housing benefit it is still your responsibility to make sure your rent account is up to date.

You can check your rent balance and payments 24/7 if you register on the tenant's website at myhousing.tamworth.gov.uk

Need help with housing costs?

If you are on a low income, you may be entitled to help with your housing costs and service charges from either Universal Credit or housing benefit.

Universal Credit is a means tested benefit for working aged people. Universal Credit is one single payment paid monthly into your bank account. If you claim Universal Credit to help with your housing costs you will be responsible for paying your rent to the council. There are certain circumstances where Universal Credit will pay the rent direct to the landlord either at the claimant or landlords request, such as being eight weeks or more behind with your rent or a history of being behind with your rent or being unable to manage your own finances. A full list of reasons can be found on the Universal Credit website.

Why is it important to report a change of circumstances?

You must report any change in your circumstances that will affect your benefits:

- To make sure you are getting the correct amount of benefit maximising your income.
- To avoid being paid too much, and having to pay that back.
- Claiming benefits that you are not entitled to is fraud and may lead to a criminal investigation. An example of benefit fraud is not declaring a partner is living with you or not declaring savings or an increase in savings that may affect your eligibility for the benefits you are claiming.

How to report suspected benefit fraud

Call National Benefit Fraud Hotline freephone 0800 854 440, if you have hearing or speech problems there is the text phone service on 0800 328 0512, alternatively complete the online form www.gov.uk/report-benefit-fraud or write to NBFH, PO Box 224, Preston PR1 1GP.
